

Ryan Strickland

Ryan Strickland lives and breathes baseball. Born and raised in Port St. Lucie, the 26-year-old is the St. Lucie Mets manager of sales/ball-park operations. As the assistant to the general manager, his main goal is getting his players to the major league, and he'll do whatever it takes to help them. "I don't think [beauty] has anything to do with looks,"

Strickland says. "My heart's in the right spot." All he asks in return is to see his young players working hard, accomplishing their goals, wearing their uniforms proudly, and maybe still remembering him when they're famous.
